2017 Visiting Scholars

Father Thomas Ryan

Fr. Thomas Ryan is a native of Minnesota and a member of the Paulist Fathers community of Catholic priests. His ministry has been marked by three passions: spirituality; Christian unity; and interreligious understanding and collaboration. Fr. Tom is currently the director of the Paulist North American Office for Ecumenical and Interfaith Relations in Washington, DC, and former director of the Canadian Centre for Ecumenism and of Unitas, an ecumenical center for Christian meditation and spirituality in Montreal, QC. An avid outdoorsman and appreciator of the theatrical and musical arts, he is the author or co-author of 14 books and leads retreats internationally.

Natasha Klukach

A lay theologian of the Anglican Church of Canada began serving the World Council of Churches as a Programme Executive in 2011 with responsibility for Church and Ecumenical Relations: deepening and strengthening the fellowship of 348 member churches. Her appointment for a term to the International Commission for Anglican-Orthodox Theological Dialogue culminated in a consensus document called In the Image and Likeness of God: a hope-filled anthropology. She is a former ecumenical officer for the Anglican Church of Canada. Natasha was a member of the Faith and Order Standing Commission of the World Council of Churches from 2007-2010, working specifically to develop the consensus text The Church: Towards a Common Vision adopted by the WCC in 2013. With degrees from the University of Toronto, Queen's University, and Trinity College, University of Toronto, she is now furthering her research of the contemporary ecumenical movement writing a doctoral dissertation at King's College London.
